RESTORING KEY'S FLAG

The Original Star Spangled Banner Is To Have a New Birth.

Work on the restoration of the original star spangled banner which floated from the flagstaff at Fort Mifflin when Key wrote the national anthem was recently begun at the Smithsonian institution, Washington.

The flag measures 29 by 36 feet, the stars being two feet across from point to point, and the stripes two feet wide, and, according to the officials at the institution, it is the largest flag they knew ever to have been in action. It was deposited in the Smithsonian by Eben Appleton, the grandson of Colonel George Armistead, who was commandant of Fort Mifflin at the time.

The bill for the restoration of the frigate Constellation, the oldest ship in the United States navy, which is to be towed to Baltimore from Newport, R. I., has passed the house and is now before the Senate.

In the office of the architect of the war department maps of Fort Mifflin, dating back as far as 1893 and 1819, have been found. They will be used in laying out the grounds of the fort for a park.

President Wilson has signed the bill granting Fort Mifflin to the city of Baltimore as a park. The bill passed both houses of Congress and has the approval of the war department.

THE WORTH OF PLAYGROUNDS.

At a meeting of the City Club in Philadelphia recently at which the subject of municipal recreation was under discussion one of the speakers gave utterance to the sentiment: "A foot of playground is worth an acre of penal institutions."

It is difficult to gauge the value of the playground, but in every city where a playground or a system of playgrounds has been established the testimony has been in its favor as a beneficial institution. Most of our American cities did not give much thought to the recreation idea in the beginning, but none of them undertook to get along without prisons. Perhaps if the playgrounds were more numerous the country might be able to dispense with a few acres of its penal establishments.

That the playground has a civilizing and elevating influence is not to be doubted. Figures compiled in various cities show that juvenile offenses are fewest in localities where recreation grounds are available. They also show that there are fewer accidents and injuries to children in such neighborhoods. Children who are "raised up in the streets" make trouble for themselves and for other persons. In cities where there is not a playground system it is inevitable that children will play in the streets—for it is the nature of the child to play.

No city ever made a bad investment in buying a playground or in establishing a system of playgrounds. There are very few cities that are adequately supplied in this way.—Courier-Journal.

THIS KIDNEY REMEDY A GREAT HEALER

For a number of years I was troubled with my kidneys, condition so serious that part of the time I was unable to work. Tried several remedies, also different physicians without relief. A sample of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root was left at my house. I commenced to take it and continued it until I had taken several bottles and am now cured. Am sixty-two years of age and able to work every day. I attribute my cure to the use of your Swamp-Root.

My wife also was cured by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. Symptoms were very serious, including hemorrhages, great pain and distress. I commenced giving her Swamp-Root and it was just as healing in her case. We can heartily recommend your Swamp-Root to all kidney sufferers.

Very truly yours,

A GAME MANAGER

Even Hard Luck Cannot Dampen the Ardor of Herzog.

(New York Evening Sun.)

Charles Lingua Herzog, a former Giant who still remains extremely popular with New York fans, will be the attraction at the Polo Grounds this afternoon. Herzog will lead his reconstructed Cincinnati Reds against McGraw's men in the first game of a series that may have an important bearing on the National League championship.

The Reds, who have played phenomenal ball under the guidance of their young and energetic manager, are second in the race. If they are able to win two of the three games scheduled here they will return home with increased confidence prepared to fight harder than ever.

When Herzog asked Garry Herrmann last winter to secure his release from the giants the Cincinnati magnate and his famous Board of Directors were inclined to regard the request lightly, until Herzog's earnestness and confidence in his ability to make good as a major league manager induced them to take the chance. So Herrmann and his partners handed over Bob Bescher to the Giants in exchange for Herzog and Grover Hartley, the latter finally jumping to the Reds. Herzog took hold of the Reds where Joe Tinker left off. The team was disjected and wrecked, yet the young manager went to work with a will, while Cincinnati's avvil chorus looked on in amazement.

Although the Reds have induced Packard, Hartley, Chief Johnson, Marsans and Davenport to desert the Porkville team, Herzog has not lost heart. He has kept on working and his men, bristling with new enthusiasm, have worked with him. Herzog, therefore, comes here with a feather in his cap and a chip on his shoulder. He has more Dutchmen in uniform than local fans ever have seen on the same team—Hohlitzel, Groh, Niehoff, Berghammer, Uhler, Lohr, Von Kolnitz and Yingling—yet he says that the Dutch under his management surely will capture the Irish.

It is so unusual to see a Cincinnati team up in the race that the fans all over the circuit are turning out in large numbers. The Cincinnati Club will make much money in spite of the dull times. Herrmann and his Board of Directors are in clover and the avvil
